Sadly, the Manthorpe Newsletter is no more.

However, plans are afoot to use this site as an online repository of all historical content submitted for the newsletter.
This provides a number of advantages:
- an online searchable library of all content
- a preservation of all historical Manthorpe newsletters
- grouping related articles together for a more natural reading experience
- greater exposure of the Manthorpe family tree and all members, worldwide

If you have new articles to submit to the site in the meantime, feel free to register then contact the webmaster to become an article submitter.
